

SCOTT OGAWA

3481 Kellogg Global Hub
2211 Campus Drive
Evanston, IL 60208

650-814-3843
sogawa@northwestern.edu

Research and Teaching Fields

Research: Applied Microeconomics, Education, Experimental Economics
Teaching: Microeconomics, Experimental Economics, Econometrics and Statistics

Education

PhD/MA, Economics, Northwestern University, Evanston, Illinois, 2013
Dissertation: “Separately Identifying the Screening, Signaling, and Sunk-Cost Effects of Price: Do Students who Pay More Study More?”
Committee Chairperson: Diane Whitmore Schanzenbach
MS: Mechanical Engineering (Control Systems), Stanford University, Stanford, CA, 2004.
BS: Mathematics and Mech. Eng. (with distinction), Stanford University, Stanford, CA, 2003.

Teaching Experience

Assistant Professor of Instruction (2014 – present), Northwestern Economics
Intermediate Microeconomics, Intermediate Microeconomics, Econometrics, Experimental Economics, Economics of Education.
Introduction to Applied Statistics (School of Education and Social Policy)
Lecturer (2013 – 2014), Northwestern Economics
Lecturer of Managerial Economics & Decision Sciences (Fall 2014), Kellogg
Microeconomics Analysis
Teaching Assistant (2011 - 2013), Kellogg School of Management
Decisions Sciences
Teaching Assistant (2009 – 2010), Northwestern Economics
Intro Micro, Intermediate Micro, Transportation Economics
Teacher (2004 – 2008), Lakeside School, Seattle, WA
Calculus, Economics

Fellowships and Awards

Honor Roll , Northwestern Associated Student Government (2015-16, 2017-18)
Fellow – Institute for Education Sciences (2010 – 2013)
Russell Sage Foundation grant in experimental economics (2011)
Teaching Assistant Fellow – Searle Center (2010)
Distinguished Teaching Assistant – Northwestern Economics (2009 – 2010)
Tau Beta Pi Honor Society – Stanford (2003)